Over the course of the last five years, the Helsingin Sanomat Foundation (HSF) has been the main sponsor of the UNESCO/Guillermo Cano World Press Freedom Prize. This prestigious award, whose twentieth anniversary was celebrated this year, has been awarded to courageous journalists who have stood up for press freedom and freedom of expression, despite the risks they faced. It is considered as one of the leading recognitions worldwide in the field of press freedom and is the only one in existence within the United Nations system. Given the international visibility of the award, it highlights the commitment and resolution of individuals towards freedom of expression and the challenges they face.

With the support of HSF, the Prize has facilitated the release of several laureates and has allowed their work to continue. From 2013 to 2017, four out of five laureates were imprisoned at the time of their respective award ceremony. Three of them were later released, a testament to the impact of the Prize and its potential in contributing to a free and independent media all over the globe.

In 2013, the independent international jury recommended Ethiopian journalist Reeyot Alemu as the winner. At the time, she was serving a five-year prison sentence for her reporting. Alemu was released in 2015, serving only three years of her sentence. Investigative reporter Ahmet Şik from Turkey received the Prize in 2014 and was one of the few laureates not imprisoned at the time the award was conferred. The 2015 Prize was awarded to Syrian press freedom advocate Mazen Darwish, who had endured torture, travel bans, numerous detentions and harassment for his work. He had been arrested in 2012 and was released from jail in August 2015, three months after receiving the Prize. The following year, Azerbaijani investigative journalist Khadija Ismayilova was chosen by the 2016 jury. On 25 May 2016, only three weeks after receiving the prestigious Prize, she was released from prison. The latest laureate is Dawit Isaak, an Eritrean-Swedish journalist who has been imprisoned for more than 15 years since 2001. His current whereabouts are unknown.

The partnership with HSF can be considered a success, not only in terms of its efficacy, but also in terms of its impact. In the last five years, the Prize has been able to change lives for the better and has become more prominent as the leading recognition for press freedom advocacy. The support of HSF has been indispensable in this process.
LAUREATES

Laureates of the Prize have made significant contributions to media freedom worldwide, often in the face of danger and in times of crisis. They are selected by an international and independent jury, consisting of six members who represent all types of media. Jury members are well-known for their work in the area of news gathering, journalism, press freedom, and freedom of expression.

The Prize has been awarded to journalists and activists, in some cases posthumously.

Every year, 3 May is a date which celebrates the fundamental principles of press freedom: to evaluate press freedom around the world, to defend the media from attacks on their independence and to pay tribute to journalists who have lost their lives in the exercise of their profession.

World Press Freedom Day (WPFD) is one of the main awareness-raising events on freedom of expression, and in particular press freedom and safety of journalists. Since 1993, UNESCO leads the global celebration with a main event in a different country every year, together with the host government and various partners working in the field of freedom of expression. The main celebration of WPFD organized by UNESCO offers a rare opportunity for media, human rights defenders, law and policy makers, civil society, UN agencies, and academics to network and explore new ideas and issues. It serves as the platform for the latest developments in the international standards on freedom of expression and press freedom. There are also opportunities for participating in various workshops for capacity building.

In 2017, the main conference of WPFD was held in Jakarta, Indonesia under the global theme of Critical Minds for Critical Times: Media’s role in advancing peaceful, just and inclusive societies. Organized by UNESCO, the Government of Indonesia and the Indonesian Press Council, it gathered a record 1,500 participants from over 90 nationalities who examined the challenges facing media around the world such as fake news, safety of journalists, gender equality and countering violent extremism.

Globally, there are on average 100 WPFD celebrations of varying sizes taking place each year on or around 3 May.

Significance

The annual date was proclaimed World Press Freedom Day by the UN General Assembly in 1993 following a Recommendation adopted at the twenty-sixth session of UNESCO’s General Conference in 1991. This in turn responded to a call by African journalists who in 1991 produced the Windhoek Declaration which called for press freedom to encompass also media pluralism and independence.

The general value of the Day on the international calendar is that it serves to encourage citizens and authorities to cherish press freedom values, and to sensitize them about the adverse consequences of violations of the right to freedom of expression. It serves as a reminder to governments of the need to respect their commitment to press freedom and it is also a day of reflection among media professionals about issues of press freedom and professional ethics. Just as importantly, World Press Freedom Day is a day of support for media which are targets for the restraint, or abolition, of press freedom. It is also a day of remembrance for those journalists who lost their lives in pursuit of a story. The Day has become a staple for press freedom organizations to convene with other stakeholders and explore further courses of action or partnerships.

Role of UNESCO

Within the UN family, UNESCO has a long-standing tradition of monitoring and raising awareness about the status of freedom of expression, freedom of information, and press freedom worldwide. UNESCO’s Communication and Information Sector implements the Organization's 1945 constitutional mandate to promote the "free exchange of ideas and knowledge" and the "free flow of ideas by word and image." Its rights-based foundations provide context to UNESCO’s approach to media development as being inseparable from the universal right to freedom of expression (and its corollaries of press freedom and the freedom of information).

They further underpin the UNESCO perspective that this bundle of rights applies to all media and across all frontiers. A flagship moment in this regard is the annual commemoration of World Press Freedom Day each 3 May through a global celebration and multiple local events, and the awarding of the UNESCO/Guillermo Cano World Press Freedom Prize. This is part of UNESCO’s work as facilitator of networking and consensus-building between state and non-state actors, bringing them together to negotiate and create enabling conditions for freedom of expression, a free press, and access to information.

UNESCO has a proven track record in fostering dialogue on media and freedom of information legislative reform between policymakers, civil society organizations, media development groups, media, and other key actors worldwide as well as in supporting the development of the institutional and human capacities necessary for legislation’s effective implementation. As part of the "One UN" philosophy, UNESCO also has a strong record of working in tandem with other UN agencies and mechanisms, such as the Special Rapporteur for freedom of opinion and expression and the Universal Periodical Review process.

UNESCO is the leading UN agency in the areas of safety of journalists and the issue of impunity. It has spearheaded the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity which was endorsed by the UN Chief Executives Board in April 2012. The UN Plan of Action is now a global reference point in the areas of safety of journalists and fight against impunity for crimes against journalists and is being referenced in UN General Assembly and Human Rights Council resolutions as well as EU Guidelines on Freedom of Expression Online and Offline.

UNESCO established the World Press Freedom Prize in honor of Guillermo Cano, a Colombian journalist who died in the exercise of his profession. The purpose of the UNESCO/Guillermo Cano World Press Freedom Prize is to reward each year a person, organization or institution that has made a notable contribution to the defense and/or promotion of press freedom anywhere in the world, especially if risks have been involved. The objective of the Prize is in conformity with UNESCO's policies and is related to the program of the Organization in the field of communication and information and, more specifically, to the priority given to promoting an enabling environment for freedom of expression and freedom of information.

Article 2 – Designation, amount and periodicity of the Prize

2.1 The Prize shall be entitled “UNESCO/Guillermo Cano World Press Freedom Prize”.

2.2 The Prize shall be funded by voluntary contributions from States, international agencies and organizations, as well as other entities and shall consist of recurrent payments to be deposited in a special account opened for that purpose in accordance with the Financial Regulations of UNESCO. The value of the Prize shall be of a minimum of 25,000 USD and determined by the Director-General in consultation with the donors on the basis of the contributions received, the interest on the sum deposited in the special account in accordance with the Financial Regulations of UNESCO, and the charges to be borne by the account for the cost of administering the Prize.

2.3 The prize also consists of a certificate and an object symbolizing the award and granted to the prize winner.

2.4 All funds received and the interest accrued thereon shall be kept in a special interest-bearing account for the Prize.

2.5 The full staff support and operating/management costs of the Prize, including all costs relating to the award ceremony and public information activities shall be fully covered by the Cano Foundation and other donors. To this end, the Director-General shall determine a mandatory overhead cost amount to be applied and charged against the funds in the Special Account, which is to be established under the Financial Regulations for the Prize.
